

Brighton & Hove Archaeological Society

'1 or 2 people have shown interest in training so need to double check.'

Brighton & Hove Organic Gardening Group

Have 2 sites for volunteers to practice organic gardening techniques – data submitted is only for 1 site. The other one has roughly 4 volunteers monthly.

DIG (Dementia Inclusive Gardening) at PLOT 22

Also stay in touch with participants by sending notecards before and after each session.

Friends of Bevendean Down

'Litter picking is essential to conservation. However, feel that when volunteering their time it should to conserve chalk downland. Litter problem should be addressed by those paid to do the job funded by those who make the litter'

AND

Also think it would be very good if local university students could do plant and wildlife surveys such as quadrants and mammal counts.

Friends of Blakers Park

Unsure if any members have taken part in any training courses so need to check at the next committee meeting

Friends of Hollingbury & Burstead Woods

Several members are leadership trained but how do they get free first aid training?

Friends of the Patch – look at the survey before the Forum establishment in early 2017 by University of Brighton. It has lots of information a group characteristic.

Friends of the Three-Cornered Copse

Sessions are severely limited by ranger availability

PLOT 22

Site is on Weald Allotments

Racehill Community Orchard

Hopefully going to be used by groups of children in forest schools.

Also, would like to have community payback groups on site as more people from Whitehawk using the space.

Rock Farm

6-acre charity run therapeutic growing project connecting people in Brighton with the West Sussex countryside.

Stoneham Park Gardening Group

Was previously a committee member of Friends of Stoneham Park. Setting up a new group to focus on improving planting. Have found Green Spaces a good point of contact – would like them to act more as sharing ideas and problem suggestions.

The Friends of Regency Square

Applied for leadership training course and has been given a date.

The Friends of St. Ann's Well Gardens

Hard to recruit younger physically active volunteers in our area

The Grange Garden Volunteers

The building is Grade 2 listed and in a conservation area
